The competition is split into three directions and you must choose to enter either the Editorial / Fashion Artistry, Screen / TV / Simulation or Body Painting/Airbrushing categories. Entry includes competition in both the AM and PM sessions in your chosen direction, and separate Awards are given for both the AM and PM sessions, plus an Overall Award. The Body Painting/Airbrushing category has just one session, and therefore a single Award will be given.

For each category, you must provide a mood board or portfolio brief showcasing the inspirations, techniques and products being used in your completed look. This mood board should be no larger than A3 and will indicate to the NMUA judges the reasoning behind your creative choices. Each mood board should include a face chart of the final look.

Each category is designed to enable you to showcase your talent whilst working to a specific brief, with 90 minutes given for each session. Your work will be judged both during and after each session by the NMUA judging panel to a set score sheet.

Judging

Judging will take place throughout the competition, with floor judges monitoring the progression of each look and the hygiene and safety guidelines outlined in the judging criteria. A judging period is then factored into the end of each category, where all models will be judged by the full panel on the criteria outlined in the score sheet shown in this pack. Award winners in each category will then be selected from these scores, with the Overall Awards being based upon the scores received across both sessions and the judges overall opinions.
